Dear Danny Aldin,

The list of our books is enclosed. I regret to say that there are very few books I can recommend and they are hard to get. I have nothing to do with pretended solutions to the crime and the assorted theories that are supposed to support them because they deceive and mislead the people. Sylvia Meagher's superb Accessories after the Fact, Vintage reprint, is being offered as a remainder by Edward R. Hamilton, Bookseller, Falls Village, CT 06031-5000. Howard Roffman's Presumed Guilty is the best simplification of the presumption of Oswald's guilt but I've not heard of a copy for sale in years. The others add nothing to what is known where they are factual and have misleading information in them.

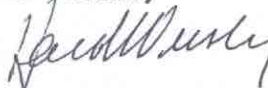

I'm 81 and in impaired health and I want to spend all the time that remains for me doing what work I can so I do not want to take time in correspondence, particularly to tell people what I have in books. I hope you can understand this.

I've not paid much attention to the videos because with few exceptions they were made for money, not to inform, and while there is some good in some of them, they also mislead. One that is by far the best is Gerard Selby's ~~Case~~ Reasonable Doubt. The stores that do not have it can get it.

I do not conjecture on the number of shots. That can lead to nothing. I have presented what evidence there is on this in Post Mortem.

The Dallas Cinema Associates sold the rights to David Wolper of their schmalzy President Kennedy's Last Hour. I do not know where it is available. What did <sup>have</sup> some value is what was not schmalz, the outtakes, but I do not have them and do not know where you can get them.

Best wishes,

Harold Weisberg
